About The NCS™

The National Community Survey™ (The NCS™) report is about the “livability” of Roseville. A livable community is a place that is not simply habitable, but that is desirable. It is not only where people do live, but where they want to live. The survey was developed by the experts at Polco’s National Research Center.

Great communities are partnerships of the government, private sector, community-based organizations and residents, all geographically connected. The NCS captures residents’ opinions considering ten central facets of a community:

- Economy
- Mobility
- Community Design
- Utilities
- Safety
- Natural Environment
- Parks and Recreation
- Health and Wellness
- Education, Arts, and Culture
- Inclusivity and Engagement

The report provides the opinions of a representative sample of 476 residents of the City of Roseville collected from January 19, 2021 to March 10, 2021. The margin of error around any reported percentage is 5% for all respondents and the response rate for the 2021 survey was 16%. Survey results were weighted so that the demographic profile of respondents was representative of the demographic profile of adults in Roseville.

How the results are reported

For the most part, the percentages presented in the following tabs represent the “percent positive.” Most commonly, the percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., excellent/good, very safe/somewhat safe, etc.). On many of the questions in the survey respondents may answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in the tab “Complete data.” However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in most of the tabs. In other words, the tables and graphs display the responses from respondents who had an opinion about a specific item.

Comparisons to benchmarks

NRC’s database of comparative resident opinion is comprised of resident perspectives gathered in surveys from over 600 communities whose residents evaluated the same kinds of topics on The National Community Survey. The comparison evaluations are from the most recent survey completed in each community in the last five years. NRC adds the latest results quickly upon survey completion, keeping the benchmark data fresh and relevant. The communities in the database represent a wide geographic and population range. In each tab, Roseville’s results are noted as being “higher” than the benchmark, “lower” than the benchmark or “similar” to the benchmark, meaning that the average rating given by Roseville residents is statistically similar to or different (greater or lesser) than the benchmark. Being rated as “higher” or “lower” than the benchmark means that Roseville’s average rating for a particular item was more than 10 points different than the benchmark. If a rating was “much higher” or “much lower,” then Roseville’s average rating was more than 20 points different when compared to the benchmark.

The survey was administered during the COVID-19 pandemic, a time of challenge for many local governments. While we provide comparisons to national benchmarks, it is important to note that much of the benchmark data was collected prior to the pandemic. This may impact how your City’s 2020 ratings compare to other communities’ ratings from the past five years.

Methods

Selecting survey recipients

All households within the City of Roseville were eligible to participate in the survey. A list of all households within the zip codes serving Roseville was purchased from Go-Dog Direct based on updated listings from the United States Postal Service. Since some of the zip codes that serve the City of Roseville households may also serve addresses that lie outside of the community, the exact geographic location of each housing unit was compared to community boundaries using the most current municipal boundary file. Addresses located outside of the City of Roseville boundaries were removed from the list of potential households to survey. Each address identified as being within city boundaries was further identified as being within one of the five areas. From that list, addresses were randomly selected as survey recipients, with multi-family housing units (defined as those with a unit number) sampled at a rate of 5:3 compared to single family housing units.

An individual within each household was selected using the birthday method. The birthday method selects a person within the household by asking the “person whose birthday has most recently passed” to complete the questionnaire. The underlying assumption in this method is that day of birth has no relationship to the way people respond to surveys. This instruction was contained in the introduction of the survey.

Conducting the survey

The 3,000 randomly selected households received mailings beginning on January 19, 2021 and the survey remained open for seven weeks. For 1,500 households, the first mailing was a postcard inviting the household to participate in the survey. The next mailing contained a cover letter with instructions, the survey questionnaire, and a postage-paid return envelope. The final mailing contained a reminder letter, another survey, and a postage-paid return envelope. For the remaining 1,500 households, the first mailing was a postcard inviting the household to participate, followed one week later by a reminder postcard. All mailings included a web link to give residents the opportunity to respond to the survey online. All follow-up mailings asked those who had not completed the survey to do so and those who had already done so to refrain from completing the survey again.

The survey was available in English and Spanish. All mailings contained paragraphs in both languages instructing participants on how to complete the survey in their preferred language.

About 1% of the 3,000 mailed invitations or surveys were returned because the household address was vacant or the postal service was unable to deliver the survey as addressed. Of the remaining 2,972 households that received the invitations to participate, 476 completed the survey, providing an overall response rate of 16%. The response rates was calculated using AAPOR’s response rate #2* for mailed surveys of unnamed persons.

It is customary to describe the precision of estimates made from surveys by a “level of confidence” and accompanying “confidence interval” (or margin of error). A traditional level of confidence, and the one used here, is 95%. The 95% confidence interval can be any size and quantifies the sampling error or imprecision of the survey results because some residents’ opinions are relied on to estimate all residents’ opinions. The margin of error for the City of Roseville survey is no greater than plus or minus five percentage points around any given percent reported for all respondents (476 completed surveys).

In addition to the randomly selected “probability sample” of households, a link to an online open participation survey was publicized by the City of Roseville. The open participation survey was identical to the probability sample survey with two small updates; it included a map at the beginning asking where the respondent lives and a question about where they heard about the survey. The open participation survey was open to all city residents and became available on February 23, 2021. The survey remained open for two weeks. The data presented in the following tabs exclude the open participation survey data, but a tab at the end provides the complete frequency of responses to questions by the open participation respondents.

Analyzing the data

Responses from mailed surveys were entered into an electronic dataset using a “key and verify” method, where all responses are entered twice and compared to each other. Any discrepancies were resolved in comparison to the original survey form. Range checks as well as other forms of quality control were also performed. Responses from surveys completed on Polco were downloaded and merged with the mailed survey responses.

The demographics of the survey respondents were compared to those found in the 2010 Census and 2017 American Community Survey estimates for adults in the City of Roseville. The primary objective of weighting survey data is to make the survey respondents reflective of the larger population of the community. The characteristics used for weighting were age, sex, race, Hispanic origin, housing type, housing tenure, and area. No adjustments were made for design effects. Weights were calculated using an iterative, multiplicative raking model known as the ANES Weighting Algorithm.* The results of the weighting scheme for the probability sample are presented in the following table.

NRC aligns demographic labels with those used by the U.S. Census for reporting purposes, when possible. Some categories (e.g., age, race/Hispanic origin, housing type, and length of residency) are combined into smaller subgroups.

The survey datasets were analyzed using all or some of a combination of the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS), R, Python and Tableau. For the most part, the percentages presented in the reports represent the “percent positive.” The percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., excellent/good, very safe/somewhat safe, essential/very important, etc.), or, in the case of resident behaviors/participation, the percent positive represents the proportion of respondents indicating “yes” or participating in an activity at least once a month.

On many of the questions in the survey respondents may answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in the tab “Complete data”. However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in the reports. In other words, the tables and graphs display the responses from respondents who had an opinion about a specific item.

Highlights

Roseville residents enjoy a high quality of life, and the City's utilities contribute to the high marks.

Residents value the quality of life in Roseville, with 9 in 10 giving positive reviews to the City as a place to live and the overall quality of life in the community; these ratings were higher than the national benchmarks. Around 90% of respondents indicated they were either very likely or somewhat likely to remain in Roseville for the next five years and to recommend living in the City to someone who asks. The overall image or reputation of Roseville also received exceptional marks from 93% of community members and ranked above the national benchmark.

In addition to the high indicators of the quality of life, Roseville residents gave exceptional marks to utilities in the community. 97% of community members responded that the overall quality of the utility infrastructure was excellent or good, while 92% stated similarly for storm water management, putting both items much higher than the national benchmarks. Over 90% of respondents gave positive marks to utility billing, drinking water, garbage collection, sewer services, and power (electric and/or gas) utility, all of which were higher than the national benchmark. Affordable high-speed internet access received positive scores from about two-thirds of residents.

Community members are pleased with their local government.

Residents gave outstanding and above-average marks to almost every aspect of government performance in Roseville. About 9 in 10 respondents gave high marks to the overall quality of services provided by the City of Roseville as well as the overall customer service provided by Roseville employees. At least three-quarters of residents assigned positive reviews to the City treating residents fairly and with respect, being honest, and generally acting in the best interest of the community. About 77% of residents rated the value of services for the taxes paid to the City and the overall direction of Roseville as excellent or good. Being open and transparent to the public and the overall confidence in Roseville government scored similarly high marks (73% and 72%, respectively). Over 65% of respondents also gave excellent or good marks to the City informing residents about issues facing the community and the job Roseville does at welcoming resident involvement. All of the aforementioned items scored higher than the national benchmarks.

When asked about their preferred methods for receiving news and information from the City, more than half of residents indicated they either strongly or somewhat preferred the City's website and email newsletters and around 32% of community members preferred mail. Social media platforms were less popular than other methods; the most preferred platform was Facebook at 25%, followed by Nextdoor (20%), Instagram (16%), and Twitter (10%). Similarly, fewer than 2 in 10 respondents indicated they either strongly or somewhat prefer community meetings or other methods.

Resident's praise Roseville's economy.

Roseville's economy was an important and positively rated facet of the community. The City as a place to work scored much higher than the national benchmark, with 88% of respondents rating it excellent or good. About 9 in 10 residents gave high marks to the overall economic health of Roseville, and the quality of economic development and employment opportunities also received higher-than-average ratings from at least 7 in 10 residents. In addition, the City's shopping opportunities scored much higher than the benchmark (93% excellent or good). At least 8 in 10 respondents positively rated both the overall quality (93%) and variety (87%) of business and service establishments in Roseville.

Inclusivity and engagement scored on par with the nation in Roseville, but respondents indicated strong support for addressing homelessness in the community.

Items relating to inclusivity and engagement, like the sense of civic/community pride and acceptance of the community toward people of diverse backgrounds, were rated excellent or good by about 7 in 10 residents. Similar marks were given to the opportunities to volunteer and to participate in social events and activities. Community members also gave positive scores to the job the City does at making residents feel welcome (80%), valuing/respecting residents from diverse backgrounds (72%), and attracting people from diverse backgrounds (61%).

About 6 in 10 community members indicated that Roseville does an excellent or good job at taking care of vulnerable residents, including the homeless population. When asked other questions pertaining to addressing homelessness in the community, residents expressed strong overall support. While only 23% of residents indicated that homeless is a major or moderate problem in their neighborhood, 65% rated it a major or moderate problem within Roseville as a whole. Almost 8 in 10 residents considered it essential or very important for the City of Roseville to address the challenges of people experiencing homelessness in the community in some way. Residents rated the following approaches as essential or very important for the City to focus on: partnering with Placer County Social Services, non-profits, and health care providers that provide services to homeless individuals (82%), providing access to social services (80%), and creating affordable housing opportunities (62%). In addition, 78% of community members either strongly support or somewhat support the City providing supportive housing for people experiencing homelessness.

Facets of livability

Resident perceptions of quality and importance for each of the facets of community livability provide an overview of community strengths and challenges that are useful for planning, budgeting and performance evaluation. The charts below show the proportion of residents who rated the community facets positively for quality and the priority (importance) placed on each. Also displayed is whether local ratings were lower, similar, or higher than communities across the country (the national benchmark).

Balancing performance and importance

Every jurisdiction must balance limited resources while meeting resident needs and striving to optimize community livability. To this end, it is helpful to know what aspects of the community are most important to residents and which they perceive as being of higher or lower quality. It is especially helpful to know when a facet of livability is considered of high importance but rated as lower quality, as this should be a top priority to address.

To help guide City staff and officials with decisions on future resource allocation, resident ratings of the importance of services were compared to their ratings of the quality of these services. To identify the services perceived by residents to have relatively lower quality at the same time as relatively higher importance, all services were ranked from highest perceived quality to lowest perceived quality and from highest perceived importance to lowest perceived importance. Some services were in the top half of both lists (higher quality and higher importance); some were in the top half of one list but the bottom half of the other (higher quality and lower importance or lower quality and higher importance); and some services were in the bottom half of both lists.

Services receiving quality ratings of excellent or good by 88% or more of respondents were considered of “higher quality” and those with ratings lower than 88% were considered to be of “lower quality.” Services were classified as “more important” if they were rated as essential or very important by 83% or more of respondents. Services were rated as “less important” if they received a rating of less than 83%. This classification uses the median ratings for quality and importance to divide the services in half.

The quadrants in the figure below show which community facets were given higher or lower importance ratings (up-down) and which had higher or lower quality ratings (right-left). Services categorized as higher in importance and lower in quality may warrant further investigation to see if changes to their delivery are necessary.

National benchmark tables

This table contains the comparisons of Roseville's results to those from other communities. The first column shows the comparison of Roseville's rating to the benchmark. Roseville's results are noted as being "higher", "lower" or "similar" to the benchmark, meaning that the average rating given by Roseville residents is statistically similar to or different than the benchmark. The second column is Roseville's "percent positive." Most commonly, the percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., excellent/good). The third column is the rank assigned to Roseville's rating among communities where a similar question was asked. The fourth column is the number of communities that asked a similar question. The fifth column shows the percentile for Roseville's result -- that is what percent of surveyed communities had a lower rating than Roseville.

Custom benchmark tables

This table contains the comparisons of Roseville’s results to those from other communities with similar population sizes, ranging from 100,000 to 200,000. The first column shows the comparison of Roseville’s rating to the benchmark. Roseville’s results are noted as being “higher”, “lower” or “similar” to the benchmark, meaning that the average rating given by Roseville residents is statistically similar to or different than the benchmark. The second column is Roseville’s “percent positive.” Most commonly, the percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., excellent/good). The third column is the rank assigned to Roseville’s rating among communities where a similar question was asked. The fourth column is the number of communities that asked a similar question. The fifth column shows the percentile for Roseville’s result -- that is what percent of surveyed communities had a lower rating than Roseville.

This dashboard contains a complete set of responses to each question on the survey. By default, "Don't know" responses are excluded, but may be added to the table using the response filter to the right. When a table for a question that only permitted a single response does not total to exactly 100%, it is due to the common practice of percentages being rounded to the nearest whole number.

Statistical significance thresholds

Below you may select a demographic to find the thresholds for statistically significant differences between groups (i.e. the minimum difference between groups to be considered statistically significant based on the sample sizes). Use the drop down menu to the right to select demographic dimensions. If there were no responses within a specific demographic option, that option will not appear in the dashboard.

Methods (open participation)

As part of its participation in The National Community Survey™ (The NCS™), the City of Roseville conducted a survey of 3,000 residents. Survey invitations were mailed to randomly selected households and data were collected from January 19, 2021 to March 10, 2021. The results from this main survey effort represent the most robust estimate of your residents' opinions.

After the above data collection period was underway, a link to an online open participation survey was publicized by the City of Roseville. The open participation survey was identical to the probability sample survey with two small updates; it included a map at the beginning asking where the respondent lives and also a question about where they heard about the survey. The open participation survey was open to all city residents and became available on February 23, 2021. The survey remained open for two weeks and there were 853 responses.

The open participation survey data were not collected through a random sample and it is unknown who in the community was aware of the survey; therefore, a level of confidence in the representativeness of the sample cannot be estimated. However, to reduce bias where possible, these data were statistically weighted to match the demographic characteristics of the 2010 Census and 2017 American Community Survey estimates for adults in the City of Roseville. The characteristics used for weighting were age, area, sex, race, Hispanic origin, housing type, and housing tenure. No adjustments were made for design effects. Weights were calculated using an iterative, multiplicative raking model known as the ANES Weighting Algorithm.* The results of the weighting scheme for the probability sample are presented in the following table.

Open participation survey results

This dashboard contains a complete set of responses to each question on the open participation survey. By default, "don't know" responses are excluded, but may be added to the table using the response filter to the right. When a table for a question that only permitted a single response does not total to exactly 100%, it is due to the common practice of percentages being rounded to the nearest whole number.
